Evidence from `web_search`

The International Judo Federation is investigating why Algerian judoka Messaoud Redouane Dris failed to make weight, preventing a match against Israeli Tohar Butbul at the Paris Olympics, according to reports from ESPN (<https://www.espn.com/olympics/story//id/40680600/judo-org-probe-failed-weigh-match>) and The Guardian (<https://www.theguardian.com/sport/article/2024/jul/29/algerian-judoka-investigated-after-failing-to-make-weight-for-bout-with-israeli>) and the Associated Press (<https://apnews.com/article/olympics-2024-israel-algeria-5925a924c57c1d6440b2cbf09d57cb75>). The ESPN article notes that this is the third time an opponent has not faced Butbul in the last two Olympics, and the AP article mentions that in the Tokyo Olympics, Fethi Nourine withdrew to avoid a potential matchup with Butbul. image:i

Elaboration

The evidence indicates that Algerian judoka Messaoud Redouane Dris did not make weight, which prevented a match against Israeli Tohar Butbul at the Paris Olympics. The International Judo Federation is investigating the situation.

The evidence also mentions that this is not the first time an opponent has not faced Butbul in the Olympics. In the Tokyo Olympics, Fethi Nourine withdrew to avoid a potential matchup with Butbul.

Final Judgement

The Algerian judoka Messaoud Redouane Dris failed to make weight, preventing a match against Israeli Tohar Butbul at the Paris Olympics. The International Judo Federation is investigating the situation. This is not the first time an opponent has withdrawn to avoid a match with Butbul.
