shows a list of politicians with their wealth.

Elaboration

The evidence provides information on the net worth of several US politicians, including Joe Biden, Nancy Pelosi, and Mitch McConnell. The claim states that the image shows a list released by Ukraine showing US politicians taking bribes. However, the evidence does not support the claim that the list was released by Ukraine or that it represents bribes. The evidence only provides information on the net worth of the politicians.

The claim is not supported by the evidence. The evidence does not mention any bribes or a list released by Ukraine. The evidence does provide information on the net worth of the politicians listed in the image.

To verify the claim, information is missing about the source of the list and the context of the figures presented.

Evidence from web_search

The Euronews article states that the claim that Ukraine released a list of US politicians taking bribes is false and likely originates from pro-Russian propaganda. The AOL article also fact-checks the claim, stating there is no evidence to support it and that it originated from a Thai-language website. The BBC News article discusses an FBI document alleging Joe Biden and his son accepted bribes from a Ukrainian firm, but there is no evidence that Joe Biden received any payments from Ukraine.

Elaboration

The claim is false. Multiple sources, including Euronews and AOL, debunk the claim that Ukraine released a list of US politicians taking bribes. The evidence indicates that the claim is likely a result of pro-Russian propaganda and lacks any supporting evidence.

Final Judgement

The initial search results provided information on the net worth of US politicians, but did not support the claim that the image was released by Ukraine or that it represented bribes.

Subsequent searches confirmed that the claim is false and likely originated from pro-Russian propaganda.

false

Verdict: FALSE

Justification

The claim that the image is an authentic list released by Ukraine showing US politicians taking bribes is false. Multiple sources, including Euronews and AOL, debunk this claim, stating it is likely pro-Russian propaganda and lacks supporting evidence. The image itself appears to be a list of politicians and their estimated wealth, not a list of bribes.
