Evidence

Evidence from web_search

CNN published an article on April 16, 2025, discussing the capture of Chinese nationals fighting on the Russian side in Ukraine (image:i), and The Guardian published an article on May 9, 2025, discussing the Victory Day parade in Moscow, where Chinese troops marched with Russian forces (

). The International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies and the International Committee of the Red Cross published a report on the Red Cross Red Crescent Movement's response to the Russia-Ukraine international armed conflict, mentioning the Ukrainian Red Cross Society, the Russian Red Cross Society, and the Red Cross Society of China (

Evidence from `reverse_search`

The reverse image search found the image in the following sources: Wikipedia's article on airliners (<https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Airliner>) and the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum (<https://airandspace.si.edu/explore/stories/evolution-commercial-airliner>). The Merriam-Webster dictionary also contains the image (<https://www.merriam-webster.com/dictionary/airliner>).

Elaboration

The evidence suggests that the image is of an airliner, as indicated by the reverse image search results from Wikipedia, the Smithsonian National Air and Space Museum, and Merriam-Webster. The search results also show that Chinese troops marched with Russian forces in Moscow. The Red Cross Society of China is mentioned in a report about the Russia-Ukraine conflict. However, there is no evidence to support the claim that the image shows Chinese Red Cross troops setting off for the Russian-Ukrainian front.

Final Judgement

The claim is not supported by the evidence. The image is of an airliner, and there is no evidence to suggest that it depicts Chinese Red Cross troops. The search results mention

Chinese troops marching with Russian forces and the Red Cross Society of China's involvement in the conflict, but they do not validate the specific claim made about the image. `false`

Verdict: FALSE

Justification

The claim is false. While the search results show that Chinese troops marched with Russian forces and the Red Cross Society of China is involved in the Russia-Ukraine conflict, the image in the claim is of an airliner, and there is no evidence to support the assertion that it depicts Chinese Red Cross troops.
