The image

Evidence from web_search

On July 8, 2024, a children's hospital in Kyiv, Ukraine, was attacked by Russian forces, resulting in at least 42 civilian deaths, including five children. The attack severely damaged the hospital's departments, including intensive care, surgical, and oncology wards. The attacks were condemned by the UN and other international bodies.

The Wikipedia article "8 July 2024 Russian strikes on Ukraine" describes the missile attack on Kyiv and other Ukrainian cities on July 8, 2024, which resulted in at least 47 deaths and 189 injuries. The Russian government claimed the strikes targeted defense industry targets and aviation bases. The image

Elaboration

The evidence confirms that a children's hospital in Kyiv was attacked on July 8, 2024. The image shows a scene of destruction with children's toys amidst the rubble. The presence of the toys could be interpreted as a deliberate attempt to highlight the impact of the attack on children. However, there is no evidence to support the claim that the toys were photoshopped.

The evidence does not provide information about the authenticity of the image or whether the toys were added. Therefore, the claim cannot be fully verified.

Insufficient information to verify the claim.

Elaboration

The search results confirm the attack on the Okhmatdyt Children's Hospital in Kyiv on July 8, 2024. The evidence includes multiple images of the damaged hospital and the rescue efforts. However, none of the provided images show the toys in question.

Insufficient information to verify the claim.

Final Judgement

The claim states that the image shows photoshopped toys. While the image does show toys amidst the rubble of a hospital, there is no evidence to support the claim that the toys were photoshopped. The search results confirm the attack on the hospital, but do not provide information about the authenticity of the image or whether the toys were added.

false

Verdict: FALSE

Justification

The claim that the image shows photoshopped toys is not supported by the evidence. While the image depicts toys amidst the rubble of a hospital, there is no evidence to suggest they were photoshopped. The attack on the Okhmatdyt Children's Hospital in Kyiv on July 8, 2024, is confirmed by multiple sources, but none of the provided images validate the claim of manipulation. Therefore, the claim is rated as false.
