Evidence

Evidence from web_search

The AOL article (<https://www.aol.com/fact-check-elon-musk-didn-164103080.html>) fact-checks the claim that Elon Musk posted a "last dollar" image for Zelenskyy and states that the claim is false. The article includes an image of the purported tweet and mentions that the image has been debunked by other fact-checkers.

The Politico.eu article (<https://www.politico.eu/article/billionaire-elon-musk-mocks-ukraine-president-zelenskyy-asking-aid-with-meme/>) reports that Elon Musk mocked Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelenskyy using a meme. The StopFake.org article (<https://www.stopfake.org/en/fake-ukraine-stopped-using-the-starlink-system-and-insulted-elon-musk-united24/>) discusses a fake post about Elon Musk and Zelensky.

Evidence from reverse_search

The image in the claim was found on a website with the title "Dollar Bill Frame Gold Glass Frame For Coin Display Wall Hanging ...", which is not available. The image was also found on an Etsy listing for custom dollar bill art, created on July 2, 2025, and on Redbubble, a website that sells stickers. The Redbubble website contains an image of a one-dollar bill with Donald Trump's face on it, which is available as a sticker.

Elaboration

The claim is false. The AOL article (<https://www.aol.com/fact-check-elon-musk-didn-164103080.html>) fact-checks the claim and states that it is false. The reverse image search shows that the image is available on Etsy and Redbubble as custom art.

Final Judgement

The claim is demonstrably false. The image is a meme and has been debunked by fact-checkers. false

Verdict: FALSE

Justification

The claim that Elon Musk posted an image of a dollar bill with Donald Trump's face on it, mocking Zelenskyy, is false. Fact-checkers, such as the one from AOL (<https://www.aol.com/fact-check-elon-musk-didn-164103080.html>), have debunked the image, and reverse image searches show the image is available as custom art.
