Evidence

Evidence from web_search

The World Jewish Congress (WJC) website provides the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance (IHRA) working definition of antisemitism, which was adopted on May 26, 2016. The definition includes examples of antisemitism, but does not mention the assassination of JFK. The IHRA definition has been adopted or endorsed by numerous countries and organizations. The United Kingdom adopted the IHRA definition on December 12, 2016. The search results do not mention the World Jewish Congress or any amendments to the definition in March 2025.

Evidence from web_search

The Canadian government adopted the IHRA definition of antisemitism in 2019 as part of its Anti-Racism Strategy. A handbook was published on February 12, 2025, and the IHRA definition has been adopted by several provinces, cities, and townships in Canada. [<https://www.canada.ca/en/canadian-heritage/services/canada-holocaust/antisemitism/handbook-definition-antisemitism.html>]

The IHRA Working Definition of Antisemitism was adopted in 2016 and is a "working definition" which "connote[s] the possibility for change." The Nexus Document and the Jerusalem Declaration on Antisemitism were written in response to the IHRA definition. [<https://urj.org/blog/five-definitions-antisemitism>]

Elaboration

The provided evidence indicates that the IHRA definition of antisemitism was adopted in 2016 and has been adopted by various countries and organizations. The definition does not mention the assassination of JFK. The search results do not mention any amendments to the definition in March 2025. Therefore, the claim cannot be verified.

Final Judgement

The search results show that the IHRA definition of antisemitism was adopted in 2016 and does not include the assassination of JFK. There is no evidence of an amendment by the World Jewish Congress in March 2025 to include this.

false

Verdict: FALSE

Justification

The World Jewish Congress's (WJC) website provides the International Holocaust Remembrance Alliance (IHRA) working definition of antisemitism, which was adopted in 2016 and does not include the assassination of JFK. There is no evidence of any amendment by the WJC in March 2025 to include this, as confirmed by multiple sources, including the WJC website and the IHRA website.
