Elaboration

The evidence indicates that BlackRock is an investor in Ukrainian land. However, the search results do not provide any information about BlackRock's policies regarding the burial of Ukrainian soldiers on land it owns. One image suggests a claim that "Western owners" want to use the bodies of Ukrainian soldiers as fertilizer, but this is presented as a claim and not a verified fact.

Therefore, the claim cannot be verified based on the provided evidence. Additional information is needed to confirm whether BlackRock has made any requests or policies regarding the burial of Ukrainian soldiers on its land.

From Source: Content: The New York Times published an article on February 22, 2022, about military casualties in Kyiv, Ukraine, which includes an image of a coffin being carried by soldiers.

Elaboration

The new evidence still does not provide any information about BlackRock's policies regarding the burial of Ukrainian soldiers on land it owns. The search results show images of military funerals in Ukraine, but they do not mention BlackRock or its policies.

Therefore, the claim remains unverified due to a lack of supporting evidence.
