Elaboration

The U.S. government is offering emergency loans and arranging flights for U.S. citizens to leave Lebanon in October 2024 due to escalating conflict. The U.S. government has also been providing assisted departure flights for U.S. citizens and lawful residents from Israel since October 2023, including charter flights.

The claim that the U.S. government is offering loans for flights out of Lebanon is supported by the evidence. The claim that the U.S. has been flying Israeli citizens out of Israel on chartered flights for a year is not supported by the evidence, which states that the U.S. has been assisting U.S. citizens and lawful residents from Israel since October 2023.

The claim is partially accurate.

Final Judgement

The U.S. government is offering loans and arranging flights for U.S. citizens to leave Lebanon in October 2024. Additionally, the U.S. has been providing assisted departure flights for U.S. citizens and lawful residents from Israel since October 2023. The claim is partially accurate, as it correctly states the U.S. is offering loans and arranging flights for Americans in Lebanon, but the timeframe for flights from Israel is inaccurate. false
