Elaboration

Based on the evidence, the claim is partially verifiable. Multiple sources confirm that Donald Trump and Vladimir Putin had a phone call on February 12, 2025. Furthermore, Al Jazeera reports that Trump stated Putin wanted peace and would begin talks to end the war in Ukraine. Bloomberg also states that Trump and Putin agreed to begin talks to end the war in Ukraine on February 12, 2025.

However, the evidence does not explicitly state that Trump announced he had reached an agreement to end the war. It only mentions that talks would begin.

Therefore, the claim is partially supported by the evidence, but it is not entirely accurate.

Final Judgement

The evidence indicates that Trump and Putin spoke on February 12, 2025, and agreed to begin talks to end the war in Ukraine. However, the claim states that Trump announced he had reached an agreement to end the war, which is not directly supported by the evidence.

false

Verdict: FALSE

Justification

The claim is partially supported by the evidence. Multiple sources, including CNN and Reuters, confirm a phone call between Donald Trump and Vladimir Putin on February 12, 2025. Al Jazeera and Bloomberg report that they agreed to begin talks to end the war in Ukraine. However, the evidence does not explicitly state that Trump announced he had reached an agreement to end the war, making the claim partially inaccurate.
