Evidence

Evidence from web_search

The Wikipedia page for Bob Geldof mentions his work with U2's Bono for debt relief in developing countries and that in November 2014, Geldof announced a new Band Aid project. image:k An article from Dublin Live, published on November 3, 2024, discusses Mary Coughlan criticizing Bono and Bob Geldof for their silence on the situation in Gaza.

Elaboration

1. The evidence indicates that Bob Geldof and Bono (U2's lead singer) have collaborated on projects.
2. The Dublin Live article from November 2024 shows that Mary Coughlan criticized Bono and Geldof for their silence on the situation in Gaza.
3. There is no evidence of a tour in November 2024 to aid the Israeli army.

Insufficient information to verify the claim.

Evidence

No new evidence found.

Elaboration

1. The evidence does not support the claim.
2. The search results mention collaborations between Bob Geldof and Bono, but not a tour to aid the Israeli army.
3. The Dublin Live article indicates criticism of Bono and Geldof regarding the situation in Gaza, which contradicts the claim.

The claim is not supported by the evidence.

Final Judgement

The search results show that Bob Geldof and Bono (U2's lead singer) have collaborated on projects, but there is no evidence of a tour in November 2024 to aid the Israeli army. The Dublin Live article from November 2024 indicates criticism of Bono and Geldof regarding the situation in Gaza, which contradicts the claim.

false

Verdict: FALSE

Justification

There is no evidence to support the claim that U2 and Bob Geldof announced a multi-stadium tour to aid the Israeli army in November 2024. While they have collaborated on projects, and a November 2024 article from Dublin Live (<https://www.dublinlive.ie/news/celebs/music-legend-hits-out-bono-30287394>) criticizes them for their silence on the situation in Gaza, there is no mention of such a tour.
