Evidence from `web_search`

An AOL article from January 8, 2025, fact-checks the claim that the image shows Bashar al-Assad's Russian passport and states that the image is fake and photoshopped. The original passport image was found on Wikipedia. (

) The Wikipedia article discusses Bashar al-Assad's presidency, including the Russian and Iranian interventions in support of his government. It mentions the 2024 Syrian opposition offensives and the fall of Damascus to rebel forces, leading to the collapse of Assad's regime. The article also mentions that Assad was granted political asylum by the Russian government. (

Elaboration

The claim that the image shows an authentic Russian passport of Bashar al-Assad is false. The evidence indicates that the image is photoshopped and fake. The original passport image was found on Wikipedia.

Final Judgement

The image is a photoshopped version of a Russian passport. The original image is available on Wikipedia. An AOL fact-check confirms the image is fake. Therefore, the claim is not accurate. `false`

Verdict: FALSE

Justification

The claim is false. The image is a photoshopped version of a Russian passport, as confirmed by an AOL fact-check (https://www.aol.com/fact-check-assad-passport-image-140122086.html). The original passport image is available on Wikipedia.
